

Sure Cures

MAN might his malady endure, with grit, till death shall end it, but that each neighbor has a cure, and comes to recommend it. I have a spavin on my face, and all day long I feel it, and neighbors to my cottage change, and tell me how to heal it. Says Old Bill Wax, "Relief I bring—just take and rub this salve in, for it will cure up anything from leprosy to spavin." Old Jimson comes and brings a jug of grease, and makes a plaster, and says, "Just put this on your mug, and you'll avert disaster." To tell me I should steam my head folks seek my lewly dwelling; one says a poultice made of bread will soon reduce the swelling; one has a cake of dark green soap possessing wondrous virtue; one brings a jar of stoups, and says, "It will not hurt you." And they regard me angry-eyed, their sympathy is ended, when I admit I haven't tried the cures they recommended. They jump upon me with a wealth of words and call me gudgeon; "You don't deserve the boon of health," they tell me, in their dudgeon. The gods protect us, one and all, when we are sad and ailing, from tender-hearted folks who call with cure-alls unavailing!

(Copyright by George M. Adams.)

—WALT MASON.

"Made-In-El-Paso Week"

ROTARY club and Adclub are behind the "Made-In-El-Paso Week" movement, and with such backing the exposition is bound to be a success. Such an exposition, if held in the near future, under such auspices, will greatly stimulate local interest in our own industries, and will stimulate trade. It will be a means of education to young and not-so-young. It will be a valuable lesson in economics. It will increase the spirit of loyalty to home institutions.

But the effect of such an exposition is by no means limited to the local field. At any one time there are thousands of visitors and transients in El Paso, largely people who reside in other communities within El Paso's trade circle, and who are here on business or pleasure. At this season especially, there will be many visitors who will gain their first large conception of El Paso as an industrial center, from such a demonstration.

Under the able direction of the Rotary club and the Adclub, the projected "Made-In-El-Paso Week" exposition will surpass all previous efforts in this line. It is to be expected that every concern in El Paso that produces or manufactures anything for the general trade will be represented—the smallest as well as the largest concerns. In El Paso there are about 90 concerns manufacturing in some degree for the general trade. Some of these work on a small scale, but everything has its beginning, and in time to come it will be interesting to remember the small beginning of the great industries of the future.

No El Paso producer or manufacturer should hesitate to make a display, no matter how small a scale he may be working at present. And of course the larger concerns will leave nothing undone to demonstrate their pride in El Paso and their part in the city's success and progress.

It is probable that from this exposition movement will develop a permanent exposition, which will be one of El Paso's assets as an attraction to sightseers. The present demonstration will not be limited to manufactured goods, but will be broad enough to include flowers, fruits, grains, vegetables, etc., grown in this city and vicinity. There is an opportunity to make the display the best El Paso has ever had.

How far a little fret and fuss and temper can go is shown in a suit involving $1.35, which started in North Carolina about an overcharge for freight on a carload of oranges. The railway company offered a compromise, but a difference of $1.35, which neither side would pay, carried the case into the North Carolina supreme court, which imposed a fine of $100 on the railroad; then the case went on to the supreme court of the United States, "the highest tribunal this side of judgment day."

Turkey's Fate

NICOLAS I, czar of Russia, when the last century was young, gave Turkey the nickname "The sick man of Europe," while discussing the fate of the Turks with the British. "We have a sick man, a dying man on our hands," he said; "We must keep him alive as long as possible but we must frankly take into view all the contingencies." This was in 1844.

Turkey has lived through four wars since then, but has lost land and lost hold all the time. Young Turkey has broken and disheartened the old nation; Europe has been wearing on her. Turkey is behind the times in the western world, and that is death in itself. The ways of the Turks are not the ways of the western powers, but as the ways of the west are at epochs.

Turkey has lived these 70 years only by suzerainty. The jealousies of six nations, Germany, Russia, England, France, Italy, and Austria, have held her crumbling domain together in spite of fate and mortal sickness. But when nations are making mighty oaths against each other, England has sworn a vow that when the war is over there shall be no Turkey.

Europe is beginning to feel the lack of American funds usually pouring in from American tourists seeing the old world. The old city of Jerusalem particularly finds herself poor, poorer than she has been in this generation, lacking the generous American traveler to give to beggars and spend his money in the streets and shops and little hotels.

The Help That Counts

NOT ONLY is the United States sending food materials to Belgium, and hospital ships, nurses, doctors, and hospital supplies, but she is sending experts on social relief, who will go over the field in Europe, first in Belgium, and devise measures for more fundamental help. They will endeavor not only to help each starving person, but to destroy starvation by removing the cause. Europe needs now both the sentimental mercy which gives the distressed half of our loaf of bread, and also the scientific mercy that helps the poor to help themselves.

All the warring nations are having to shut down many enterprises for lack of dye stuffs; all have factories where mostly women are employed in making up cotton, and if they could get the cotton, these women could go on working and earning a living; the Rockefeller Foundation experts will help to settle the large problems of relief by adjusting commercial conditions wherever possible.

Incidentally, El Paso has more different kinds of amusements going on all the time than other cities. And a large proportion are outdoor events that take folks out into the open. On the whole, El Paso cannot be beat as a place to live in; it is the city of infinite variety.

Maurice Maeterlinck, the author of "The Blue Bird" and so many books of quiet philosophy and beauty, calls the king of Belgium, "The great young king of my little country, and thus far the greatest hero of this war."

14 Years Ago Today

From The Herald This Date 1900.

Robert Martin, son of W. R. Martin, left last night for the east.

Miss Ollie Lockhart will entertain a few friends at cards this evening.

Mrs. M. Douglas-Zorn entertained a few friends at a high five party this afternoon.

B. F. Brick, the contractor who has been in Mexico for some time, has returned home.

Yesterday afternoon Rev. W. H. Moore united in marriage William S. Penn, late of Philadelphia, and Miss Sadie Tillman.

The free zone of northern Mexico will be altered for the benefit of Juarez and vicinity. This is the promise of president Porfirio Diaz.

The chamber of commerce yesterday took another step toward the organization of a state board of trade by mailing copies of letters to 41 of the commercial bodies of the cities and larger towns throughout the state.

The El Paso Woman's club held a business meeting Wednesday afternoon. A large number of applications for new members were received. Among those taken in were: Mrs. A. E. Cole, Mrs. Murdoch, Mrs. C. E. Kelly and Mrs. Kendrick.

The High Five club was entertained Friday evening by Mrs. F. E. Hunter at her home on Main avenue. The guests present were: Mrs. Miller, Mrs. W.

Howe, Mrs. Callisher, Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. E. Levy, Mrs. H. Beach, Mrs. N. Solomon, Mrs. A. Solomon and Miss Zorn.

T. N. Cousen, the contractor who built the club house at Lake Santa Maria, Mexico, came up last night and returned to Casa Grande. This morning he says the club house is now complete and ready to receive the sportsmen.

The following is the lineup for a baseball game tomorrow between an El Paso team and a club composed of eastern professional players: El Paso, Krause, Long, Flynn, Beall, Ervin, Jacoby, Sullivan, Hackett, Carna, Professional, Rogers, Ahorn, Brown, Crotty, Zinsner, Starkey, Hale, Pileas, Young.

C. T. Wade came down from Las Cruces this morning.

The following county officers recently elected have filed their bonds with the county clerk, Sheriff Boone, $5000, with Dr. S. T. Turner and W. W. Turner as sureties: Thomas A. Bendy, constable, of precinct 1, $1000, with C. K. Lockhart and C. A. Morehead, sureties; Juan Armendariz, county commissioner for precinct 2, $3000, with W. J. Fewel and J. Lindman, sureties; M. Aranda, justice of the peace, precinct 3, $1000, with C. Schaefer and J. C. Critchett, sureties; and for notary public, $1000, secured by J. C. Schaefer and J. D. White.

Tom and Toby In Trouble

BY FLORENCE E. YODER.

MRS. TABBY grabbed Tommy by the ear and shook him until he meowed with pain. "Just let me catch you fighting with Toby Hicks once more," she said, "and you will stay at home in bed for two days, with nothing but bread and water."

Tommy wiggled to get away, but Mrs. Tabby held him fast. She had not finished her lecture. She held on so tightly that Tommy finally gave up trying to get away and leaned against her knee.

Then he remembered that his mother had not held him in her lap for a long time. He pushed closer to her, and patted her paw which did not have hold of his ear.

Now, it is very difficult to speak crossly to anyone who cuddles up and smiles sweetly at you, and Mrs. Tabby gradually began to speak more and more gently. Tommy cuddled closer, and looked more and more like an angel kitty, and at last Mrs. Tabby picked him up in her lap and cuddled him in good old style.

Tommy's nose went around her neck, and he whispered softly in her ear. "I never like to displease you, mother. I won't make any more trouble—no, you than go fishing, or anything."

"You please me very much, Tommy," said Mrs. Tabby. "If you only knew what a pleasure you are to me when you are good and helpful, you would never be naughty any more."

So they made up with a kiss, and Tommy went whistling out of the door, as happy as he could be. He won't make her any more trouble—not one speck," he said to himself.

He meant it when he said it, but how was he to know that Toby Hicks was waiting at the corner for no reason at all to jump on him?

He sat on the back steps for a while considering what he would do, and Mrs. Hicks came hurrying in. "Is your mother home?" she asked Tommy, but before he could answer Mrs. Tabby appeared in the doorway. "There you are," said Mrs. Hicks, "don't go in just yet, I want Tommy to hear what I have to say." Tommy picked up his ears.

"I have just finished giving that worthless Toby of mine a thrashing, and if there is one more fight he knows what he will get." She frowned furiously, and Mrs. Tabby nodded.

"Tom and I have had an understanding, too," she said. "I do not think there will be any more trouble."

Tommy went thoughtfully down the walk. He came nearer and nearer to the bushes at the corner, and as he turned Toby Hicks jumped at him. "So you got me a thrashing did you," yelled Toby. "I'll do you up behind these bushes right now."

Tommy began to defend himself, for the fight could not be seen from the house. It would never do to get caught after that tender scene with his mother. They were scratching and grunting, tightly clinched, when Mrs. Tabby came near them both stop for a second. Before they could loose their hold on one another, around the corner came Mrs. Tabby and Mrs. Hicks.

They looked up and saw Tom and Toby clamped in each other's arms. They stopped, their horrid faces speaking the two boys based into one another.

Abe Martin

It's funny how soon you become indispensable these days if you show the least disposition to work. Pinky Kerr, who joins the Matilda Jeal Repertoire company tomorrow, is havin' his shoes half-soled today.

other's eyes, and they grinned. Then Tommy spoke up, not losing his hold. "You see, Toby," he said sweetly, "you take the tone like this," and then he went, pretending to dance the latest steps. The two mothers sighed in relief. "Isn't that sweet?" they both said as they went away satisfied. But they would have wondered what it was all about if they had seen the two boys after they were out of sight. The dancing stopped and the two dancers rolled on the ground with screams of laughter. They even forgot to finish the fight.

(Copyrighted, 1914, by F. E. Yoder.)

The Daily Novelette

THE POINTER.

"Abe! Wrong it is to point. No matter where you be, you should not point, point," said Mother, tenderly.

PRUNELLA DE LITE, the young mother, was making Sinbad, her little son, out walking. Considering that he was only five, little Sinbad walked extremely well, she thought.

Suddenly, a strong odor of smoke assailed the air, and, turning, Prunella saw that it was rising from her own summer kitchen. Little Sinbad pointed excitedly.

"See, mamma, see!" he cried. "I set that afire with my little box of matches."

"Sinbad," said his mother reprovingly, "how often have I told you never to point!"

After a bit they passed a Chinaman carrying a bag of laundry. "Look at that!" said little Sinbad, waving his arm excitedly.

"Ooh, mamma!" he cried. "Look at the bag!" Sinbad said his mother reprovingly, "must I speak to you again about pointing?"

And they finished their walk and went home. The firemen were just putting out the last two of three flames. Again little Sinbad's father had returned home and was watching them amusedly.

"Agoo!" said Sinbad's mamma to Sinbad's papa. "Sinbad has been a bad little boy today. He pointed twice." So Sinbad's papa spanked him.

SHORT LINE RAILROADS OF SOUTHWEST ORGANIZE.

San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 18.—Thirty representatives of the short line railroads of California, Arizona, Nevada and Idaho met here and formed a permanent organization to look after their common interests as to rates for carrying the mail, legislative matters and dealings with the interstate commerce commission.

The organization was termed the Western Association of Short Line railroads. It will have permanent headquarters in San Francisco and all the small railroads in California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico will be asked to join.

ACCUSED MAN ENDS LIFE.

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 18.—Herbert W. Lewis, head of the Children's Aid society in California, committed suicide Tuesday in Westlake park by taking poison. Lewis was arrested on a San Francisco warrant, the complaint being a 15 year old girl in his charge. He was to have appeared in court to answer corpus proceedings Tuesday.

LITTLE INTERVIEWS

THE board of education does not believe there will be the slightest difficulty in securing the amount necessary to build the proposed $500,000 high school," said James E. Morgan, president of the board. "The school board now has $175,000 on hand that is available for this purpose. This means that about $325,000 is still needed. This money will be obtained through a bond issue which will be submitted to the voters of the county when the shell of the building is completed. The new high school building will be a great asset for El Paso in many respects. Persons who contemplate moving to El Paso, especially if they have children, will be attracted by the high school. Our present quarters are entirely too small to accommodate the student body."

"El Paso is one of the most prosperous cities in the west," said Blaine Phillips, of Lordsburg, N. M. "The prosperity of the city is evidenced by the many luxuries the citizens are able to enjoy. There are approximately 2500 automobiles in the county of El Paso, which is a big percentage for the population. Recently I have visited a number of large eastern cities and I found none of them enjoying such prosperity as El Paso. The money market is not tight here as it is in many eastern cities of similar population."

"After months of interrupted rail service Mexican cigars in large quantities are beginning to reach Juarez again," said C. L. Alvarez. "This week one merchant has received a consignment numbering 118,000 cigars, all from Veracruz. The shipment had to be relayed through the American line, and the unloaded at a dozen different points so that it would not be held up as a shipment into Villa territory. Most of the railroad men helped themselves to a handful of perfectos but aside from this the entire shipment which is one of the largest single shipments that has ever arrived in Juarez, came to the border in good shape."

"Prices charged for 'for hire' autos in El Paso are the highest in the state, if not the entire southwest," said C. Harvey. "It seems too bad that the City cannot keep pace with other cities of its size in the country in regard to the rates of hiring automobiles. In Los Angeles, Phoenix, Dallas, Houston, and other cities, some of which are not as large as El Paso, automobiles hired out by the mile or for a day are from 15 to 50 percent less than the rate generally charged in this city."

"I have a baseball pennant at my house that was awarded to the El Paso club as champions of baseball in the southwest in 1907," said L. M. Jackson, manager of the El Paso baseball club. The pennant was awarded by The Herald. Competition in the southwest for the pennant among representative teams as far east as Pecos, and west to Phoenix, began early in the season and extended until the latter part of the year. El Paso certainly had a fine team that season. When The Herald officials were in doubt as to who the pennant should be awarded, the El Paso club made a sport during the last few days of the season and won 13 out of 14 games."

"The school children are greatly interested in the printing plant at the Herald," said L. J. Allen, instructor of printing. "Printing seems to be a subject that develops their interest and they take great pride in it. It is a very practical subject and a useful one, as it will equip a boy or girl to take up a profitable trade."

"If any work represents faith, the building of the Rescue home surely stands for faith," said Mrs. W. L. Crockett. "Without seeing how its erection was to be accomplished, yet determined that it should be built, five or six women met month after month and planned and worked for the home. The cooperation of the people of El Paso, when finally gained, made the home a reality."

UNCONSCIOUS HUMOR.

(From Otero County, N. M. News.)
Last annual racing season will open at Juarez tracks on Thanksgiving day, November 28, so it is announced. These races continue throughout the winter. The officials of the "looney club" gravely state that they are keeping a close watch out on all men connected with the racing and that all the events will be "the level." This is probably unintended humor.

Students of the El Paso Schools

A LITTLE girl just starting to school was asked what she liked most about school. "Oh," she replied, "I just love the recess." The children who feel as she did were happy all day Wednesday because they have had a holiday in the middle of the week.

Recess and holidays are good things when they come between periods of hard work, but too often children want to have recess and play time all the time. Work and play are both necessary for children, so that they will grow up into strong, intelligent men and women.

The third grade is a good time to realize this. The children of the high third grade at the Bailey school, taught by Miss Dora Burton, are:

| | | |
|------------------|---------------------|----------------------|
| Stanley Bevan. | Lois Irwin. | Montrose Paul. |
| Charles Bush. | Richard Langford. | Concha Prado. |
| Sarah Burt. | James Lawless. | Klena Prado. |
| Tony Cavajal. | Eileen McQuinn. | Guadalupe Ramos. |
| Helen Collins. | Edith McLaughlin. | Carl Rhodes. |
| Cybil Fuller. | Lenis Maglier. | Bert Scott Smith. |
| Eileen Farquhar. | Anna Navarro. | Julius Simon. |
| Oliver Gramley. | Marguerite O'Brien. | Madge Wade. |
| Barton Hutchins. | Eugenie Pasqual. | Leonard Walker. |
| Mary Gist. | Maria Pasqual. | Gerald Worcester. |
| Elsie Hendricks. | Judith Pasqual. | Ja. Verne Worcester. |
| Hilda Hiss. | Clara Perea. | Harry Wood. |
| Sarah Hardie. | | Paul Wright. |

The names of the low third pupils will appear tomorrow.

T-o-u-r-i-s-t-s

BY GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Swank."

TOURIST is a person who learns geography by crawling over it with a guide book.

This is not always a successful process for the tourist. Many a tourist studies all his life at the rate of 2 cents per mile, third class and never learns the size and tonnage of the country which he has visited. But it is vastly beneficial to the geography which is traveled over by the tourist. A country which has enough tourists does not need to bother with factories and bond issues. One tourist will support two families. In Switzerland the tourist is the national beast of burden.

Tourists generally choose some country far from their native land to explore. When they land in that country they are ignorant of its language, customs, prejudices and virtues. But this does not make a tourist as big a bit as a Briton who would try to stop a world's fair. This makes a big bit, in order to get a cup of tea.

All tourists learn a great deal while traveling, but they do not all learn the same things. Some of them study the customs, manners and business of a foreign land and absorb huge irregular masses of information which they later retail to their fellow citizens with the aid of a stereopticon or a publishing company. Other tourists acquire an accurate knowledge of the salient points of difference between French and Italian wines, but remain a vacuum on other points of information. Still other tourists locate every rare old painting and decorated hero in Europe on day wages while still others others acquire a spending acquaintance with a discomfited count and are proud and uncomfortable for the rest of their lives in consequence.

Owing to the bad war Europe is out of the tourist business at present and those Americans who will have $500 to spend next year will be under the painful necessity of blowing it in in America. This will lead to some rare adventures and we may yet see a New York's 400 making his stuporid way across Illinois at the head of a large expedition of badly-armed and solitary alone and unprotected except for a railroad and hotel guide.

Copyrighted by George Matthew Adams.

acquire a spending acquaintance with a discomfited count and are proud and uncomfortable for the rest of their lives in consequence.

Owing to the bad war Europe is out of the tourist business at present and those Americans who will have $500 to spend next year will be under the painful necessity of blowing it in in America. This will lead to some rare adventures and we may yet see a New York's 400 making his stuporid way across Illinois at the head of a large expedition of badly-armed and solitary alone and unprotected except for a railroad and hotel guide.

Copyrighted by George Matthew Adams.

acquire a spending acquaintance with a discomfited count and are proud and uncomfortable for the rest of their lives in consequence.

Owing to the bad war Europe is out of the tourist business at present and those Americans who will have $500 to spend next year will be under the painful necessity of blowing it in in America. This will lead to some rare adventures and we may yet see a New York's 400 making his stuporid way across Illinois at the head of a large expedition of badly-armed and solitary alone and unprotected except for a railroad and hotel guide.

Copyrighted by George Matthew Adams.

acquire a spending acquaintance with a discomfited count and are proud and uncomfortable for the rest of their lives in consequence.

Owing to the bad war Europe is out of the tourist business at present and those Americans who will have $500 to spend next year will be under the painful necessity of blowing it in in America. This will lead to some rare adventures and we may yet see a New York's 400 making his stuporid way across Illinois at the head of a large expedition of badly-armed and solitary alone and unprotected except for a railroad and hotel guide.

Copyrighted by George Matthew Adams.

acquire a spending acquaintance with a discomfited count and are proud and uncomfortable for the rest of their lives in consequence.

Owing to the bad war Europe is out of the tourist business at present and those Americans who will have $500 to spend next year will be under the painful necessity of blowing it in in America. This will lead to some rare adventures and we may yet see a New York's 400 making his stuporid way across Illinois at the head of a large expedition of badly-armed and solitary alone and unprotected except for a railroad and hotel guide.

Copyrighted by George Matthew Adams.

acquire a spending acquaintance with a discomfited count and are proud and uncomfortable for the rest of their lives in consequence.

Owing to the bad war Europe is out of the tourist business at present and those Americans who will have $500 to spend next year will be under the painful necessity of blowing it in in America. This will lead to some rare adventures and we may yet see a New York's 400 making his stuporid way across Illinois at the head of a large expedition of badly-armed and solitary alone and unprotected except for a railroad and hotel guide.

Copyrighted by George Matthew Adams.

acquire a spending acquaintance with a discomfited count and are proud and uncomfortable for the rest of their lives in consequence.

Owing to the bad war Europe is out of the tourist business at present and those Americans who will have $500 to spend next year will be under the painful necessity of blowing it in in America. This will lead to some rare adventures and we may yet see a New York's 400 making his stuporid way across Illinois at the head of a large expedition of badly-armed and solitary alone and unprotected except for a railroad and hotel guide.

Copyrighted by George Matthew Adams.

acquire a spending acquaintance with a discomfited count and are proud and uncomfortable for the rest of their lives in consequence.

Americans gaze scornfully at king George in England and regard royalty with lofty scorn.

acquire a spending acquaintance with a discomfited count and are proud and uncomfortable for the rest of their lives in consequence.

Owing to the bad war Europe is out of the tourist business at present and those Americans who will have $500 to spend next year will be under the painful necessity of blowing it in in America. This will lead to some rare adventures and we may yet see a New York's 400 making his stuporid way across Illinois at the head of a large expedition of badly-armed and solitary alone and unprotected except for a railroad and hotel guide.

Copyrighted by George Matthew Adams.

acquire a spending acquaintance with a discomfited count and are proud and uncomfortable for the rest of their lives in consequence.

Owing to the bad war Europe is out of the tourist business at present and those Americans who will have $500 to spend next year will be under the painful necessity of blowing it in in America. This will lead to some rare adventures and we may yet see a New York's 400 making his stuporid way across Illinois at the head of a large expedition of badly-armed and solitary alone and unprotected except for a railroad and hotel guide.

Copyrighted by George Matthew Adams.

acquire a spending acquaintance with a discomfited count and are proud and uncomfortable for the rest of their lives in consequence.

Owing to the bad war Europe is out of the tourist business at present and those Americans who will have $500 to spend next year will be under the painful necessity of blowing it in in America. This will lead to some rare adventures and we may yet see a New York's 400 making his stuporid way across Illinois at the head of a large expedition of badly-armed and solitary alone and unprotected except for a railroad and hotel guide.

Copyrighted by George Matthew Adams.

acquire a spending acquaintance with a discomfited count and are proud and uncomfortable for the rest of their lives in consequence.

Owing to the bad war Europe is out of the tourist business at present and those Americans who will have $500 to spend next year will be under the painful necessity of blowing it in in America. This will lead to some rare adventures and we may yet see a New York's 400 making his stuporid way across Illinois at the head of a large expedition of badly-armed and solitary alone and unprotected except for a railroad and hotel guide.

Copyrighted by George Matthew Adams.

acquire a spending acquaintance with a discomfited count and are proud and uncomfortable for the rest of their lives in consequence.

Owing to the bad war Europe is out of the tourist business at present and those Americans who will have $500 to spend next year will be under the painful necessity of blowing it in in America. This will lead to some rare adventures and we may yet see a New York's 400 making his stuporid way across Illinois at the head of a large expedition of badly-armed and solitary alone and unprotected except for a railroad and hotel guide.

Copyrighted by George Matthew Adams.

acquire a spending acquaintance with a discomfited count and are proud and uncomfortable for the rest of their lives in consequence.

Owing to the bad war Europe is out of the tourist business at present and those Americans who will have $500 to spend next year will be under the painful necessity of blowing it in